Welcome to 42 acres of picturesque landscape situated on Lake Dr in Bamberg, South Carolina. Bamberg, a town that traces its roots back to the late 19th century, emerged as a thriving community driven by the railroad industry. Founded in 1897, this coastal plain region became a significant commercial center for farming and plantations. Bamberg's rich history includes noteworthy achievements like the submarine spar torpedo experiments conducted by Dr. Francis F Carroll at Clear Pond, located just nine miles outside of town. During the early 20th century, Bamberg proudly stood as the most active cotton market between Augusta and Charleston, fueling the region's economic prosperity.
